

An aerial photograph of the Concorde Tower Hotel in Antalya, Turkey, during sunset. The hotel is a tall, modern building with a distinctive curved glass facade that reflects the golden light of the setting sun. The building's design features a mix of white, dark grey, and metallic gold panels. At the base, a curved glass section is illuminated from within, and a sign for the casino is visible. The hotel is situated in a cityscape with other buildings and a highway in the background, with mountains visible on the horizon under a warm, orange-hued sky.
